A wealth of impressive standard features

Every 2004 Cosalt holiday home boasts an impressive list of functional and feel-good features. These practical, value-adding features will benefit everyone, enhancing the essentials of holiday home living - relaxing and enjoying leisure time with friends and family. As you will see from the details on these pages and the sections on each range, the fundamental specification is comprehensive and complete, epitomised by: -

• The peaked, pantile roof allows us to internally vault ceilings throughout the whole length of the holiday home creating a light and airy feeling in every room.

• The spacious lounges feature a stylish fireplace.

• Shower cubicles are fitted with thermostatic mixer taps.

• Coffee and some dining tables have practical drop leafs to ease storage and movability. Other dining tables feature a pullout extension to give you welcome extra space whenever you need it.

• In the kitchen, there is a 600mm (domestic size) cooker, with four rings on the hob, a grill and oven all with electronic ignition.

You will also notice that the worktops are joined together without the need for unsightly metal joint strips and the tile board at the back of the worktops is a good practical addition.

• The strong metal framed beds - many fitted with easy-lift mechanism to create either extra floor space or give access to storage.

• Internal domestic style, panelled doors are made from practical, hardwearing uPVC.
