

Biodiversity Statement for Caravan Site at Brickyard Farm

The site being proposed for retrospective planning permission has been a caravan site for a number of years. Because no further construction or earthworks to the site is needed, no additional harm will be caused .

Prior to the construction of the site some years ago the land was used as agricultural land, growing a range of cereal and vegetable crops. Biodiversity on the site was initially very limited, due to the previous land uses.

During a visit to the site no wildlife was seen to be present.

We therefore conclude that no biodiversity net gain is applicable for this site
