The written scheme of archaeological investigation submitted meets the requirements of this office in respect of the archaeological advice we have provided for the proposed development as indicated in previous consultations for this site.

This site lies in an area of archaeological interest. There are records of Roman pottery close by, which may be indicative of settlement here during this period. Additionally, there are finds dating to the middle Saxon period which are rare in this area, which could also indicate a presence here during this period.

We would therefore recommend that the written scheme of archaeological investigation form part of the approved plans for the development, with SHDC's secondary archaeological conditions AR2 and AR3 added to ensure that due notification is provided of the intention to start the archaeological work outlined in the WSI and that the final report is submitted and any archive deposited as required by NPPF 205.
