Hi David,

I received an email from the archaeologists and the developers on this one asking what the requirements would be for this site. In truth, I think that the previous work they did was enough, it showed that if there was archaeology in the area that it was probably too deeply buried to be affected by this cable route. I think that if its possible, that the archaeology condition be removed or shown as completed, I'm pretty sure that the condition was just carried over from the previous permission anyway.

Let me know if this can't be done or you need anything more from me.

Kind Regards

Louise Jennings
