This architectural elevation drawing depicts a building facade with a gabled roof. On the left side, there is a large, multi-paned window. To its right, a smaller, single-paned window is visible. Further right, a chimney rises from the roofline. The roof itself is gabled, with a smaller gable section on the right side. The building's exterior is rendered with horizontal lines, suggesting a textured surface like siding or brickwork. The drawing is a black and white line art, typical of architectural blueprints.
